SEASONABLE FOOD SUPPLIES ON MARKET BENCHES.

The hot sun of the past few days has brought the vegetables along with a rush, and in consequence a larger supply of fresh vegetables was in the market today than had been expected. The prices were a trifle lower in a few cases, but the changes were comparatively small. A better supply of tomatoes was on the benches this morning than there has been for several days past, though the price held the same, 15c 1/4-peck. Cabbages and cauliflowers are plentiful.

A few blackberries and huckleberries made their appearance on the outside benches, but they were nearly the last survivors of the berry season. Grapes are showing up better every day, and dropped several points in price. Pears are also becoming more plentiful, and a good supply of apples is now for sale. The meat market is stationary. Just about enough beef and lamb is on sale to meet the demand. Good beef brings 10c to 20c a pound, according to the cut, and spring lamb, from 18c to 20c a pound. Round steak brings 15c; sirloin, 15c to 20c, and porterhouse, 22c to 25c.

LAFAYETTE AND EMPIRE OPEN THEIR DOORS

"Arizona," at the Former, Repeats Its Old Success. Familiar Characters in New Hands—Mr. Fernandez's Success as Tony.

Academy Continues Its Season With "A Ragged Hero" Gilmore at the Empire. Burlesque at the Lyceum.

Lafayette—"Arizona."

The regular season at the Lafayette Theater was ushered in last night under most auspicious conditions. Augustus Thomas' play, "Arizona," one of the most popular and interesting stage stories of latter years, formed the attraction, and the theater was filled from pit to dome by an enthusiastic, romance-loving audience.

A little more than four years ago Augustus Thomas added "Arizona" to his list of "State" plays, and though many who made up Eastern audiences knew little of the so-called "atmosphere" of the alkali country, they were made to feel instinctively that Mr. Thomas had drawn a true picture. No matter what section of the country this author selects as the locale for one of his plays, he has implanted in his admirers a faith so strong that his mistakes in drawing, if any, are not only forgiven, but denied.

Aside from its interesting story "Arizona" is chiefly conspicuous for its variety of characters. They range from a school teacher to a fiery Mexican, from the stalwart American cavalryman to a wily Chinaman, and from the persons who meet at a post hall to the rough, open-hearted ranchman and his people. As given his individual attention until each is as clear cut and as finished as if the author had started out to make it the star character and then changed his mind.

"Arizona" is a play that carries itself. Its stirring scenes, telling lines, and succession of interesting pictures called for unbounded enthusiasm last night and the curtain man was kept busy sending the big drop up and down after each act.

Whenever a play is given its premiere production with a notable cast, and then returns with other players in the old parts, that much hackneyed assertion about comparisons arises in the mind. It is not exactly fair to the actors who "follow" in these roles, but it nevertheless, appeals strongly to the theatergoer.

In some instances this is the case with the company now presenting the Thomas play. Yet, there are several characters whose impersonations may get right in line with their predecessors, and chief of these is Escamillo Fernandez, the Tony of the current production. Tony has little to do until the third act, and those who had seen a sterling actor, Edgar Selwyn, in the part, wondered what this man with the unfamiliar name, would do with the several strong scenes allotted to the character. He scored the success of the performance.

Another consistent hit of acting and one which stood out prominently in the presentation was the work of Charles E. Graham as Sergeant Keller. The few scenes given the actor were played with reserve and subtle force. Ben Deane furnished much of the comedy as Dr.

Fenton, U. S. Cavalry, and Joseph Greene's conception of Canby was much that of the originator of the role, Theodore Roberts.

Of the other actors in the play, there is little to be said. Frank B. H., as Denton, plays several of his dramatic scenes well, but he cannot be induced to stop squirming and get down to business in love making. He peeps at Bonita entirely too much. Alma Bradley, as Bonita, and Eleanor Wilton, as Mrs. Canby, do good work.

Academy—"A Ragged Hero." A large and appreciative audience opened the third week of the season of the Academy of Music and passed judgment on a well-staged production of the ever-popular and thrilling melodrama, "A Ragged Hero." This well-known play is the work of Maurice J. Fielding, and abounds in scenes of both thrilling and sympathetic variety. That "murder will out and right always triumph" was never made so evident as in following the fortunes of "A Ragged Hero." The usual story of a murder, wrongly accused hero, conscienceless villain, and final triumph of the hero is told by a series of numerous hair-raising episodes and escapes.

Gertrude Swigert, as Juliet Stone, although appearing in only the last two acts, is certainly one of the redeeming features of the performance. With a style a la Sis Hopkins and a marked blandness and originality, she easily made the hit of the show, and deserved the praise and applause given. Hal Brown, as Willie Wilflower, the ragged hero, although he somewhat overdoes the tramp business, earned much well-deserved applause, and proved that "rags make no shelter true manliness." J. Phillips Smith, Herbert F. Denton, Julia West, Messrs. Shirley, Sedwell and Roberts, and Lottie Gentile are notable members of the cast.

Empire—"Kidnaped in New York." The Empire Theater opened its doors for another season last night, when a performance of the stirring melodrama, "Kidnaped in New York," was given. The production was seen and approved by a large and representative audience, made up for the most part of women and children. The work is founded on the kidnapping of Baby Clark in New York city several years ago. Contrary to the usual run of things in melodrama, there is not an impossible situation or action in the entire play.

Lyceum—"Kentucky Belles." "Kentucky Belles" is the name of the show at the Lyceum this week. It is badly in need of rehearsing, and should be better later in the season. The best thing in the show was the dancing of Halley and Meehan. They were the hit of the evening with their feet, but their jokes had white whiskers and were told in a tiresome manner. A triple horizontal bar team was good, but one of the men fell in swinging from the first to the third bar and had to retire. A burlesque, "The Marriage Trust," opened the show, and it closed with "Down Where the Blue Grass Grows."

HORSE SHOW WEEK OPENS AT WARRENTON

Some Well-Known Society Women Will Enter Their Animals.

(Special to The Washington Times.)

WARRENTON, Va., Aug. 25.—This is gala week in Warrenton, and, beginning with the ladies' german at the town hall tonight, there will be a continuous round of gayeties until Sunday. Wednesday and Thursday will be given over to the horse show, and nearly every private residence in or near Warrenton is the scene of a house party. On Wednesday night Mr. and Mrs. Scott Nesbit will give a private ball to a house full of guests. Thursday night the regular weekly german of the Warrenton German Club will take place.

Beginning with the "good mornings" and ending with the "good nights," nothing is to be heard on the lips of the Warrentonians but "horse talk." Those who do not know and love horses have no place here this week if they would take the slightest part in the life of the place. Men, women, and children are forever discussing with all the fluency of the initiated the merits of the hunters, jumpers, roadsters, and hackneys that are entered for the show. Wednesday morning will find the town flooded with all manner of vehicles occupied by all sorts of people. Four-hands and ox carts, tandem carts and far-1 wagons, stylish runabouts and old-fashioned top buggies will mingle together in the steady streams that will pour in from every road.

There are 388 entries for the Warrenton show this year, thirty-seven more than ever before, despite the fact that Courtland H. Smith and James K. Maddux, whose horses have heretofore done so much to swell the lists, will not enter. Mr. Maddux has retired from the Virginia circuit, and Mr. Smith is resting his horses, preparatory to taking them north. Prominent horse owners who will exhibit are L. D. Passano, Richard Wallace, Maxwell Wyeth, C. S. Carter, Frank Barker, William F. Randolph, H. R. Dulany, Rogers Brothers, Dr. James Kerr, Gibson & Greene, Blair Johnson, Charles Harkamp, U. D. Benner, and George Slater.

Among the women who will enter, riding or driving their own horses, are Miss Charrington, Miss Barry, Mrs. Nannie Langhorne Shaw, Miss Daniel, Mrs. Frank Barker, Mrs. F. A. B. Portman, and Mrs. Blair Johnson.

WENT OVER FAMILIAR GROUND. Lieut. Gen. S. B. M. Young, chief of staff, has returned from Riverport, Va., where he spent Sunday in looking over the battlefield of Cedar Creek and other historic places along the Shenandoah, where he saw service in the civil war.

VETERANS THREATEN SECRETARY OF NAVY

Demand Preferential Treatment at New York Navy Yard.

Acting Secretary Darling, of the Navy Department, received a letter from George Jackson, of Kings county, N. Y., in which the threat is made that the Administration will suffer at the hands of the C. A. R. members in that county in case veterans of the civil war are not given preferential treatment at the New York navy yard.

In the letter, Mr. Jackson states he is the secretary of the memorial committee of the Grand Army posts of Kings county, an organization which includes thirty-one posts, and has a membership of 4,000. The letter was prompted by a recent order of Naval Constructor Capps for a competitive examination at the New York yards on August 25, to select a foreman. William H. Helme, a member of the Veterans' Association, is now in charge of the work. If he passes the examination it is said he will be named foreman. There are many other veterans employed in the yard, and it is charged that Naval Constructor Capps is endeavoring to get rid of them. Acting Secretary Darling has directed that an investigation of the charges be made.

BUREAUS UNITE FORCES TO KEEP OUT ANARCHISTS

Department of Commerce and Labor Will Have Aid of Police Chiefs.

To prevent the entrance of foreign criminals into the United States a co-operative arrangement has been formed between the Immigration Bureau of the Department of Commerce and Labor and the International Association of Chiefs of Police, with headquarters in Washington.

The compact, which is designed to provide for the mutual benefit of those concerned and the country at large, was effected by Commissioner General Sargent and Major Richard Sylvester, chief of the local Police Department and president of the international association.

The substance of the plan is that the police departments holding membership in the international association shall supply the immigration officers with information concerning the movements of all persons over whom they are supposed to maintain a surveillance. The police officials will thus communicate with the immigration officers on learning of any contemplated move of the criminals, or on receiving any word at all that would prove of assistance.

Before this arrangement was decided upon the immigration officers were expected to prevent, if possible, the entrance of a criminal into this country, but great difficulty was experienced in establishing the identification of the suspect. With a minute police description to work with, however, the problem will not be so difficult.

The Washington Times invites the co-operation of its readers in a new presentation each week of the important truth that "The Times Want Ads bring results." To this end it offers three cash prizes each week—a first prize of $5, a second of $3, and a third of $2—for the best three original suggestions of cartoons illustrating the value of the Times as a "Want Ad" medium. They will be illustrated by suggestive sketches or not, but the awards will always be made on the merits of the ideas submitted and not on the quality of the drawing, although a drawing assists the judges in passing upon each idea. By this plan the competition is not restricted to artists, but is open for all alike. Descriptive matter accompanying may be in prose or verse.

Intending competitors, in order to get a better idea of what is expected by the judges, should familiarize themselves with the "Want Ads" daily published in the Times.

A single competitor may send any number of suggestions.

That The Times is a family newspaper, appealing to each member. It is, therefore, one of the best advertising mediums, because "in Washington and vicinity nearly everybody reads The Times."

A "Want Ad" left at a Times branch office before 12 noon will be inserted the same day, read the same evening, and probably answered the same night.

Suggestions which do not win prizes, but are deemed of sufficient merit to be used, will be paid for at the rate of $1 each.

The matter submitted by the competitors should bear no indication of the identity of the sender. The full name and address of the latter should be enclosed with the cartoon, but always IN A SEPARATE SEALED ENVELOPE. Suggestions will not be returned.

Suggestions received before 6 p. m. Saturday, August 22, will be eligible for competition in the first award.

The winner of the award will be announced in The Sunday Times, August 30.
